

Attend to Your Mazda's Needs

Engine Oil

- Lubricates, cleans, absorbs shocks, seals, helps maintain temperature and prevents corrosion, etc.
- Changing it periodically helps keep the engine's performance at its best.

Engine Oil Filter

- Engine oil filter removes dust or impurities from the oil.
- If oil filter gets clogged, it will lead to engine damage.

Battery

- How a vehicle is driven/used significantly affects battery life.
- To prevent the battery from premature failure, it needs periodic inspection, maintenance and replacement.

Air Filter

- When the air filter gets clogged, it causes a lack of power and the engine in turn will consume more fuel.
- To avoid such situations, periodic cleaning or replacement is necessary.

Drive Belt

- Worn out drive belts make odd sounds or get severed, affecting other engine systems. (Eg. Cooling system, charging system and air-conditioning system)
- Periodic inspection, adjustment or replacement is necessary.

A/C Air Filter

- If air conditioner (A/C) air filter gets dirty, air flow volume becomes low, lowering A/C performance.
- Deodorising performance also decreases, causing a bad odour.

Wiper Blade

- Wiper rubbers deteriorate over time. High ambient temperature, ozone, and acid rain, etc. also affects life of rubber.
- We recommend periodic replacement.

Tyre

- Tyres' air pressure goes down over time and tyres wear out over distance travelled.
- Tyres need to be periodically inspected for recommended air pressure and wear condition.

Disc Brake Pad

- A brand new brake pad is 9-12mm thick. If a pad becomes thinner than specified thickness, it needs to be replaced.
- Periodic inspection is needed. Wear indicator also notifies you about a worn brake pad.

Brake Fluid

- If brake fluid deteriorates, it causes vapour lock and corrosion, disabling the brakes.
- Periodic replacement is recommended.
- Mazda deposits cleaner
